Whether you're preparing for a big storm or the zombie apocalypse, your best bet for survival is being ready. Many people wonder about what they would do in a disaster situation, but don't take the time to properly prepare for one. This book is designed to make you start thinking about what items you should have in case of an emergency as well as what everyday items can be used to help you survive in a disaster. Disasters vary greatly by region, ranging from month-long blizzards in the far north to tsunamis and hurricanes around the equator. You may even be preparing for nuclear fallout, which requires far more preparation than a big storm. The items you will need to survive vary greatly depending on what you're preparing for, but the priorities mostly remain the same: food, water, shelter, fire. The hacks included in this book range from the simple, broad survival tips that everyone can use - such as a flat tire in the middle of nowhere - to the more specific long-term tips for those facing more extended disasters. The hacks have been divided up into three categories. Here is a preview of what you'll learn: Preparation and Storage Simple Hacks Long-Term Survival
